

POOL VIEW / ST. REGIS PRINCEVILLE

KAUAI KING

Kauai's former Princeville Hotel was recently reopened as the St. Regis Princeville after a multimillion-dollar redux. Designed in tribute to the Hawaiian concept of Ahupua'a—a philosophy of living in balance with nature—the resort now has a relaxed, tropical-colonial feel that highlights Hawaii's natural beauty. Guests of the top-end Royal Suite ($6,500 a night) are privy to sweeping views of breathtaking Bali Hai (Mt. Makana) from multiple outdoor terraces. The 2,400-square-foot space is appointed with a fireplace, media room, fully-equipped kitchen, formal dining room that seats eight, and a master bathroom with a palatial freestanding marble whirlpool tub. Three-Michelin-star chef Jean-Georges Vongerichten has opened the on-site, seafood-centric Kaua'i Grill, and the softly-lit and tranquil 11,000-square-foot Halele'a Spa specializes in luxurious treatments that incorporate natural elements.
